Curlers Hold Annual Bonspiel

Rinks from Edmonton, Tofield, Chauvin, Edgerton, and Viking, Match Skill With "Stanes"

To say that the annual bonspiel of the Wainwright Curling Club was a complete success is indeed describing the affair in the very mildest terms of description, for it was simply our senior's roaring, howling unqualified success from every standpoint and angle.

The weather, and in this every curler of the local association will second hooch and nail to the mast (and it is not in Cocoa) who put in a few finishing touches on the day preceding the opening (Monday) all of these efforts being to ample repaid that at the commencement of the first sweep off on Monday everything was in such grand shape that the year's bonspiel has proved without any doubt to be the best ever attempted.

Five splendid sheets of the finest of curling surfaces had been prepared and by the time of the opening draw at 1 p.m. everyone was up on their toes to carry off some one or more of the splendid array of prizes which consisted of the following:—

Grand Challenge—The Maryland Cup, trophy, with four sweaters for first and four scarves for second winners.

The Calgary Brewing Cup, Trophy and fourteen pens, for first, pock knives second.

The Edmonton Brewing Cup—Tyrolean and cut glass soapon dishes, first, boxes of cigars, second.

The Viking v. Town—Pyrofum items, first, pock knives, second.

The Flat Cup (Consolation)—Tobacco and pair of gloves, first, curling brooms, second.

These have been on display during the past few weeks and made a very fine array.

The meals at the dining-rooms during the games were very ably attended to by the ladies of the Methodist church, and their efforts were most heartily appreciated.

The club extends their heartiest thanks to all those who assisted in any way towards the making the 1920 bonspiel such an unqualified success.

No less than sixteen rinks were entered, the personnel of the teams being as follows:—

This of course left the town side in the lead to the extent of three points, the scores at the finish readin Town 88, Visitors, 85. It was certainly most unfortunate for the visitors Slavick not playing at the 10th end in his game with Perkins, as if he could have had two more in the other two ends the visiting teams would then have been the victors.

DOROTHY GISH WILL BE SEEN IN BATTLING JANE

Dorothy Gish whose first Paramount will be shown at the Elite Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, is the most talked of picture personality in the United States today. Her work has drawn for her hundreds of notices, not one of which was unfavorable, and has made it necessary to employ a private secretary. But twenty one years of age Miss Dorothy has been in motion pictures for seven years. She has never left D. W. Griffiths up until the present picture, except for two or three small productions under his direction before he began the work of bigger features. In her present series Miss Gish is working under the guidance of Elmer Clifton, whose work with other stars has brought him much favorable mention from the critics. In her work Miss Gish insists on a story as well as her personality, and does not believe that any star should allow herself to be shown with a story that is not worthy of her best effort.

GILT EDGE GOSSIP

The U. F. W. A. held a well attended meeting last week when the officers for the ensuing term were elected as follows:—President, Mrs W. Plaxton; sec.-treas., Mrs J. Forsyth. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs S. Kitchen.

At the annual meeting of the local branch of the U. F. A. held a week ago, J. R. Callison was elected president for the year and Edward Goddard was elected to fill the office of vice-president. Ted Goddard was appointed as secretary-treas.

A special of the U. F. A. is called for January 27th, when in addition to other business an illustrated lecture will be given.

We hear that Ed. Monaghan was elected as the new school trustee at the meeting held recently.

John Black who was on a business visit to Edmonton returned last week [illegible]

As our readers are possibly aware the extreme shortage of newsprint paper has caused the complete closing down of several western daily papers during the past week. The three dailies published in Winnipeg were obliged to combine to issue a one-sheet bulletin, and Saskatoon as Moose Jaw were also nearly out of business as regards getting news. It is therefore imperative that The Star conserves its stock of newsprint to in view, and much as we regret the action, we will therefore be compelled within the next couple of weeks to cut off from the mailing lists the names of all those subscribers who are at that time not paid up to date at least.

Look up the date on your label NOW, and be guided by straight honest advice. The situation is such that we are forced to take this step to protect our paid-up subscribers as well as ourselves.

LOOK AT YOUR LABEL NOW.

A nasty accident befell our old townsman, "Dad" Simmerman last Saturday afternoon, when owing to the entrance to the cellar having been left open unnoticed, the sufferer fell through the opening and sustained two broken ribs and some bruises He was attended by Dr. Wallace and soon strapped and swathed in great shape; so much so that he feels near ly himself again, and the fracture is knitting nicely.

HEATH H. PPENINGS

A dance was given at the Aspen District schoolhouse by the boys at on Friday evening last, when despite the fact that the temperature was nearly 30 degrees below there was quite a large turnout. Dancing was indulged in from about 9.30 till the "wee sma' hours" and everybody had a most enjoyable evening. The boys desire to express their thanks to Mr and Mrs C. W. Blackwell and Tom Maughan, whose musical talent did so much for the success attained.

We noticed quite a large number present from Bloomington and Edgerton, and we are sure that Heath folks will reciprocate whenever opportunity offers.

VALUABLE QUARTER CHANGES HANDS

A realty deal was closed this week whereby the S.W. quarter of 45-6-4 just one mile north of town was sold by J. M. Strange and J. C. Shirley to Sam Adams. This proves that uncle Sam is another one of the many who has absolute confidence in the Wainwright district. [illegible]

RETURNS HOME AFTER 4 YEARS CHASING HUNS

Many and heavy were the greetings and "welcome home" handclasp on Friday evening last when Capt. C. T. Lally stepped off the westbound without any previous inking of his arrival.

It will be well remembered that our now returned "warrior" who was up till 1915 the proprietor of one of the large general stores in town disposed of his business interest and joined the colors to fight his country's battles, after having undergone a thorough training in serial and fly ing corps work in Toronto.

During the period of his absence "over there," over four years in all, he saw service on several fronts, and was in many engagements. On one occasion he was badly wounded, sustaining wounds in the back and in the shoulder. He was also the victim of a nasty accident on another occasion, when the plane of which he was in command crashed to earth with its human load.

Happily, however, he is now as "fit as a fiddle" and The Star echoes the sentiments of his large number of friends and acquaintances in giving expression to another hearty "welcome home."

NEW BUSY BEE CLUB FORMED

On Saturday afternoon last at the home of Mrs J. Welch, under the direction of Mrs W. Yeager the Busy Bee Sewing Club was formed and the following officers were elected: President, Miss B. Welch; vice-pres Miss E. Housego; sec.-treas, Miss M. Prosser. The following members were also present: L. Jones, E. Watson, A. Wiley, V. Graham, A. McLeod, M. Housego M. M. Beckett, and G. Welch. Girls from 8 to 13 years of age are eligible to membership the object being to learn to sew, Mrs. Yeager having kindly consented to act as instructress. The club will meet every two weeks at different homes of the members, the next gathering being at the home of Miss M. Prosser on Saturday, January 31st.

THE INTER-CHURCH FORWARD MOVEMENT

Despite the stormy weather on Sunday, evening last, a large crowd gathered at the Elite Theatre where the three local churches had arranged to hold a "community service" to hear the Revs Pearson and B. Gunn. Gunn on the Inter-Church Forward movement.

In opening the service, the Rev. W. Wilson, who was assisted by the Revs. N. F. Priestley and D. M. Thompson, excused the absence of Capt Pearson on account of his having been called urgently to Calgary.

After hymn and prayer the Rev. D. A. Gunn was introduced and gave a truly interesting talk on the foreign missions angle of the Forward Movement and appealed to his hearers to apply the points of his address in a personal sense, pointing out that despite the fact that the Hindoos in India, among whom he had worked for the past eight years, had at present some 335 million so-called gods (idols) only a very few had ever yet heard of Christ. The missionary work, he said, was of vital importance to every christian and should be considered as such.

The address was made extremely interesting by reminiscences and allegories, and the singing led by the combined choirs of the three town churches was hearty, and during the evening Miss B. Parsons very capably rendered "The Ninety and Nine" as a pleasing sacred solo, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

The Wainwright branch of the U. F. A. are announcing that they will hold their fourth annual concert and dance on Thursday, February 19th, and our reader are asked to save the date.

Motor Truck Transportation Cheaper for the Short Haul

This Form of Transportation Will Develop and Serve Large Proportion of the Province of Alberta with Good Fast Service

(By the President Alberta Truck Transportation Company, Limited.)

Within the past few years transportation of freight, express and passenger by automobile trucks has grown enormously. Experience shows this method of transportation to be more economical and serviceable, and by far a faster method of transportation for short hauls than the railroads. Motor truck transportation is now in permanent use in many of the leading comercial centres of the country, also in the United States of America. In all cases where the transportation company has been properly organized and managed it has provided an economical and faster service for the wholesaler, retailer, manufacturer and farmer, and has been of vital importance in developing the district in which it operates. This kind of transportation is not a new thing, but it is somewhat new to the motor world. All commodities or goods that are shipped have to be hauled some given distance to the railroad or lead by horses and wagons. Motor trucks have proven themselves capable of hauling these goods and merchandise to the railroad point, but for short distance haula, direct to the point of delivery this saving the extra handling charges of delivering the goods or commodities, much easier hand quicker to their destination.

These transportation companies can not only operate on good paved roads or in settled communities, but operate in districts away from the railroads, where long-distance hauls are drives have to be made by horses and wagon. Take for example the live stock production of this province.

Ninety per cent of this product is produced away from the railroad where they have to be driven on foot to the nearest point, or transported by horse and wagon. The shrinkage on livestock being and then transported is enormous. The trucks make possible a direct delivery from the farm to the stockyards, thereby eliminating the handling from the farm to the car on the rail siding.

The development of this new motor truck usage is not a flash in the pan work solely occasioned by the war, but which may now be laid due to the cessation of hostilities. The war and the consequence of railway congestion unlooked, caused a [illegible] of such work and provided the impetus by which the many advantages of truck usage have been brought home forcibly to the stock raisers.

These advantages as enumerated above, are based on a sound economic foundation, and the work is therefore bound to endure.

The great bulk of the transportation of livestock over the highways has occured in the stock raising state of Indiana, Nebraska, Iowa, Ohio, Missouri, Kansas and Texas. Although each of the stockyards keeps a record of the total number of animals driven into the yards in contrast to converted passenger cars is not kept those shipped by railroad or by boat the number hauled by motor trucks as compared with horse wagons or separately, so that the figures given below for the number of animals driven in exclusively by motor trucks are approximations furnished by the stockyards managements.

The table give below shows that a grand total of 1,899,86 animals, including cattle, calves, sheep and hogs were driven in over the highways during 1918 to the stockyards at Indianapolis, Omaha, Cincinatti, St. Joseph, Mo., Kansas City, Fort Worth Louisville and Peoria, Ill. Of this number 1,410, or approximately 70 per cent were into the yards exclusively by means of motor trucks. The detailed table shows that for number of cattle driven into the yards by the motor trucks Indianapolis leads the way, principal because of the network of good roads surrounding the city. While these roads are not all improved so in certain sections of the east, they are nevertheless passable for almost the entire year. Omaha, which ranks second, receives approximately two-thirds of its cattle from the state of Nebraska and one-third from Iowa. Hogs as a class are hauled by means of motor trucks to a much larger extent than cattle calves or sheep, and of the total given 1,310,586 hogs were driven into the yards by all methods and 1,006,140 hogs were carried in on motor truck. Sheep come next in order followed by calves, both of which animals cannot be driven in on the hoof without an excessive loss in weight for which the stock raiser has to pay.

As large as are the totals of animals driven into the yard exclusively by motor trucks, they are but a small percentage, possibly not over twenty-five per cent of the available supply of animals which might be hauled by trucks were the road conditions such that the motor vehicles could be used during all seasons of the year. As the road development plans progress, now that the war is over, the use of trucks in livestock haulage will increase proportionately, and within the next few years it [illegible]

Within a radius of 75 miles of the various stockyards will be handled exclusively by motor trucks.

As an example of what has already been accomplished in the state of Iowa by motor trucks hauling stock to Omaha stockyards and other Iowa markets at Sioux City Mason City, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Marshalltown and Davenport, the secretary of the Iowa Highway Transport Committee has stated that motor trucks have hauled to the packing houses 225600 head of hogs, 31,408 head of cattle, and 61,400 head of sheep. Had it been necessary to haul this number of animals by railroad 6,650 cars, or approximately 250 trainloads of 21 cars each would have ben required. The total road mileage represented in the haulage of this livestock by trucks including the return trips is estimated at no less than 2,513,310 miles. This livestock was hauled by farmers owning their trucks, and by 61 truck companies operating over scheduled routes throughout the state.

Return Loads

The use of trucks in livestock haulage increased so rapidly that in many instances the stockyards management were entirely unprepared for the number of trucks which would line up at the unloading chutes On the busy days as high as 300 and 600 vehicles being their loads to several of the stockyards pens. Several years ago the number of animals brought in by means of trucks was so small compared to the number at present handled in this manner that the old simple unloading chutes were sufficient But with the present volume of business such chutes have become entirely inadequate, and the entire unloading scheme has had to be revamped. Perhaps the best example of these changes may be seen at the Omaha stockyards, where there has been introduced a special platform at which thre trucks may discharge the animals at the one time without any possibility of the loads of the different vehicles becoming mixed.

In this work all sorts of vehicles have ben used, from the small roadster with just enough room in the rear for one or two calves, and the two small-wheeled trailer capable of holding one cow when hauled behind the ordinary passenger car, to the large two and three ton trucks which make a specialty of hauling livestock as a business. These large trucks haul as many as eight cattle, 30 calves, 30 dogs, or 30 sheep to the load and provided the country roads permit of the use of such trucks the year round, it is more economical to ship in large it is more economical to ship in large numbers than in loads of one or two animals. The converted passenger cars and the small trailers have been used by the owners of small farms, but even they are now seeing the wisdom of having their animals hauled by specialists in the work. The tendency a toward the use of the larger instead of the smaller trucks, and there are many companies, somewhat special double-decked bodies for hogs which do nothing else but haul livestock as a business.

Pounds of Pig and Sheep are Saved

The work may be divided into two classifications. The first and most important is the haulage from the farm within a radius of from 50 to 60 miles of the stockyards direct to the yards where the livestock is either slaughtered or shipped further east. The second division of the work is in the inter-city movement from the railroad term nals to the stockyards, as is the case in St. Louis, Mo. There the hogs were driven through the city streets from the National stockyards to the various packing firms. This was stopped when the city passed an ordinance prohibiting the driving of [illegible] up so much that when they were taken out of the car and driven to the packing plant they lost several pound in weight specc. In some instances they were so hot and tired that they had to be kept at least a day at the expense of the packer before they were cool enough to slaughter.

Then trucks and trailers were tried in the work, principaly as an experiment double-decked bodies, carrying as many as 40 hogs on two levels instead of one were employed, as well as large tractors semi-trailers hauled by motor tractors. The quick delivery, the saving of the weight lost by driving on the hoof and the dressings of the delivery resulted in a saving of 43 cents for every hog moved by trucks as compared with the rail method.

As 1000 hogs are moved across the Mississippi river each hog slaughtering day the motor trucks thus save 43,000 each day per truck.

The use of automatic dogs on the two ton and the three and a-half ton trucks has enabled the big companies to operate almost the entire year. It has been proven, however, that only these trucks could not operate on account of road conditions there were not any other vehicles of any kind or description operating on the roads, and it is true that the product is not delivered to the railroad. Those transportation systems take care of all the hauling in the way of cartage in the cities and towns. It has been argued the roads, this however is a very loose argument, as the statistics show that some of the large railroad companies only figure the average miles per day owing to the fact that so many of the cars are side tracked in small towns or blind sidings, or having been shelved are awaiting orders to be picked up.

By the Truck Transportation Company can operate cheaper than the individual truck owner is. First, in the case of the Alberta Truck Transportation Company, Limited, ad as the equipment that is used on their transportation system is purchased minus the truck dealers' profits, and tires repairs, oils and greases are bought in large quantities they thus save the profit made by dealers. Many of these companies are formed on a so-called co-operative system. Such is the system of the Alberta Truck Transportation. All farmers, merchants, wholesalers and retailers, as well as employees of the company will become a part of the company This has been a very important factor of the Transportation Company.

Take for example the Province of Alberta which is noted to be in the wheat belt of the world and also unequalled for stock raising, dairying and mixed farming, and yet we have practically no railroads in addition to serve this vast province, and under the present cost of labor and materials it will no doubt be a number of will move on to any great extent.

Truck transportation will develop and will serve a larger proportion of the province of Alberta with a faster and beter service than that of the railroad.

These trucks are able to haul coal grain, sand, gravel, bricks, lumber hay and livestock. They can compete with the railroad rates on roads where vehicles of any make or description can operate. If the company was operated by outside capital instead of the individual who got the service, it would not then be considered a big money-making investment to such a company, but when the company is owned and operated by those in need of this system and service, it is then a big investment as he is investor, as he is getting his commodities hauled at a cost price and that price is lower than that of the prevailing system which is to said

CALL OF OPPORTUNITY

It is altogether likely that when Roman immigration agents tempted the farmers of Italy to go as colonists to Britain referred to that far province in the "Land of Opportunity". That hackneyed phrase is as old as time, but it serves best of all to describe the contents of the latest circular issued by the land and resources department of the G.T.P. which shows that there are 573 open ones altogether in the small towns on their line, 216 for professional and commercial and 51 industrial.

Most of these opportunities are to be found in newly-settled districts. There are many young men in our cities who would sniff at the life of a dentist or a baker in a small town, but let it not be forgotten that while there may be more light in the city there is more of real life in the town. That is to say that the citizen of the small town sees more life than the denizen of the large city. He knows everybody in the community, their loves and hates, their joys and sorrows. The city man scarcewords go rousing down the streets every day, but he knows only a very few of them; possibly only just the little circle in which he moves. The city man is often unaware of the eccentricities of even his next-door neighbor, but in a small town everyone knows everybody and all are interested in the common weal or woe, this all adding to make life in the small town "one glad sweet song".

When the new towns of the west are shrieking for all kinds of citizens and offering abundant opportunities the young man who hangs around the city, glad sometimes to work for a mere existence and seeing nothing ahead of him for the future is acting as his own worst enemy.

Opportunity lives by preference in have a preponderance of unselfish instincts but the majority are cast in opposite moulds and only as they hit the successfully against those natural tendencies are they able to give any assistance to the cause of the King of Kings.

The observation was timely because at the moment it seems to be the popular thing to knock the idea that the League of Nations can ever success or that the Peace is to be made effective with the Central Powers means anything more than a mere breathing space in anticipation of a still greater conflict to come. Men who take this attitude are assuming a tremendous responsibility. The very fact that they talk in this strain publicly is bound to have a deeper and effect weakening to the determination of the masses who are anxious to believe that an end is coming to world strife and who are ready to work to that end.

The fact is that there can be no more war such as we have just passed through if a sufficient number of us determine that it shall not be. And it is a further fact that having a full determination that there shall be no such world catastrophe again, we would be worse than fools to allow the Jeremiahs of our acquaintance to turn us from that determination. The United States will ultimately be in the League of Nations, make no mistake about that, and with the support of civilized people back of the covenant of that League there need be no more world war horror.

Disabled ex-members of Canada' overseas forces are to get special loans without interest for the purpose of establishing themselves in an employment such as they may be able to undertake. This is just another indication of the government's willingness to give necessary aid to those of the auxiliary forces who are willing to do something to help themselves.

* * *

According to the records at Ottawa there are now 105,000 returned men in civil employment placed chiefly by government agencies. In addition there are many thousands who are in civil employment without government assistance. Taking it, on the whole the Canadian expeditionary forces are being distributed back into civil life much more readily and easily than many calamity hunters forecasted.

IT NEEDS WORK

Someone recently made the observation that if the world wanted Peace to become a reality and the League of Nations a success, it must work to that end. The observation was timely and absolute truth.

It was true because nothing in the world that is truly worth while ever happens by accident. Goodness as a personal quality in the individual has to be struggled for; goodness in a nation has to be fought for. There are no doubt some people born who have a preponderance of unselfish instincts but the majority are cast in opposite moulds and only as they hit the successfully against those natural tendencies are they able to give any assistance to the cause of the King of Kings.

The observation was timely because at the moment it seems to be

Teach the Children to Save

Habit is acquired, many times, during childhood. Teach your children the habit of saving, and you have good citizens and good bankers.

The best way to teach children to save, is to start a Savings Account for each child ($1.00 each is sufficient). After a child has earned another dollar or two, make an additional deposit, let or she will have a fair conception of just what a dollar represents, how much work and self-denial it represents.

Mr. Farmer—

When About To Buy a Cream Separator, Note The Following Facts on

THE DE LAVAL

ALL other cream separators made today, excepting none, are constructed upon either discarded or abandoned De Laval inventions, in consequence of which the very best of them are barely equal to the De Laval machines of ten years ago.

The De Laval has received all highest honors and first prizes at every important Exposition, World's Fair etc., held within the past thirty years, and is the only separator which is used in every country in the world.

More than 1,750,000 De Laval machines, many times all others combined, have been sold to date—THERE'S A REASON.

NEW ORDER ON SUGAR PRICES

A new order fixing a maximum retail price for sugar and making the same price of 16 cents per pound at retail applicable throughout Canada, has been issued by the Board of Commerce, Ottawa.

In its statement, the board points out that when the previous order was made, raw sugar was procurable at its place of origin at about six and one-half cents per pound. It now costs at the place of origin 11 1-2 cents per pound. Granulated sugar was then selling at 10 cents per pound in the U. S. and 12 cents in Canada. It is now selling from 18 to 22 cents per pound in the N. S., and is likely to go higher.

Neither the United States nor Canadian refineries can control the situation. It is due to the advanced cost of raw sugar which is produced, so far as Canada's supply for refining is concerned, in Cuba, Peru, West Indies, and other warm countries. Canada's beet sugar production is only about one and one-quarter per cent of Canada's refined sugar output.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NARROWLY AVERTED

We learn that Dick Aykroyd had a narrow escape from a serious fire recently. While using a torch to thaw out a gasoline engine some oil on the floor became ignited and the gasoline tank exploded. The inside of the building was almost immediately a mass of flames, but lthough Mr Aykroyd's clothes were ablaze he grasped a sack of cement which happened to be in the place and with great presence of mind sprinkled it over the blazing oil and so had the conflagration under control. It sure takes a hot fire to get the best of Mr Dick, but he suffered a pretty badly burnt hand however and we express our sympathies.

THE STORAGE OF ICE FOR SUMMER USE

The storage of a few blocks of ice for summer use is a very simple matter where the ice is readily available. Any unoccupied corner of a shed will serve for the purpose. A rough board enclosure 10 feet square and 8 feet high will hold ice enough to provide 50 pounds a day for 130 days, after allowing for a reasonable amount of wastage. The smaller the quantity stored, the larger is the proportion of waste.

The bottom of the enclosure should be covered with about one foot of sawdust. If the soil underneath is impervious clay it will be all the better if there is a few inches of gravel under the sawdust. In putting in the ice the boards can be taken away from one side and replaced after the ice in in position. A space of one foot should be left between the ice and the boards to be filled with sawdust, and the ice should be covered with about the same thickness. It is the sawdust which keeps the ice from melting. The drier the sawdust is the better the ice will keep, and it is a good plan, as the ice is removed during the summer, to throw out from time to time the driest of the sawdust where it will be under cover and continue to dry out and thus be in better condition to be used again the following year. The ice should be cut in blocks of uniform size and packed as closely together a possible.

If it is necessary to erect a special ice house the roughest kind of a shed to keep out the weather is all that is necessary. Poles may be driven into the ground and lined up on the inside with rough lumber, or slabs, leaving a space of about one-half inch between each board, and the whole covered with a roof to keep out the rain. Of course, the ice house may be built with a regular frame, lined inside with rough lumber and, if a more finished apearance is desired, it can be covered on the outside with clapboards or other siding. There should be plenty of ventilation above the ice. The same procedure should be followed in storing the ice and covering it with sawdust as advised in the preceding paragraph.

If sawdust cannot be obtained, hay may be used as a packing or covering material.

Marsh or "slough" hay or any fine wild hay which grows in low places gives the best results. If hay is used, the space around the ice or between the ice and the walls instead of being only one foot, should be at least two feet, into which the hay must be well packed. The ice should also be covered with about two feet of the hay.

Profiting by the near coal shortage this fall the Atlas Lumber Co. took advantage of the recent mild weather to fill their sheds and have plenty of Black Diamond coal now on hand. x

The report of the proceedings of the convention of the Alberta Hospital Association has come to hand and interested parties can obtain a copy of this by writing the secretary at the university of Alberta.
